Another Railway Project.

Articles of incorporation have been filed in the office of the secretary of Dakota which contemplate the construction of a railroad from Yankton to Fort Buford, by way of Okobaja creek and the construction of a branch therefrom leading from the mouth of Okobaja creek eastward to the head of Big Stone lake. The title of the incorporation is the "Yankton, Okobaja & Fort Buford Railroad Company." The incorporators are Wm. A. Jones, Sully Center; Walter C. Fawcett, Pierre; Wm. Bainter, Pierre; Wm. S. Knapp, Pierre; Charles P. Tyler, Pierre. The capital stock of the company is fixed at $1,000,000, in $500 shares and each one of the incorporators is to take twenty-five shares. The articles recite that the main line of the railroad is to run from Yankton to Fort Buford, 346 miles, through the counties of Yankton, Bon Homme, Charles Mix, Brule, Buffalo, Hyde, Hughes, Sully, Potter, Walworth, Campbell, Emmons, Burleigh, Stevens, Mountrail and Wadsworth. The branch to run eastward from Okobaja to Big Stone will pass through the counties of Sully, Paulk, Spink, Day, Roberts and the Sisseton reservation. It is a large sized scheme. The design is to construct a railroad which will follow the Missouri river as closely as possible along its entire length in Dakota.

EXCITEMENT AT CANTON

CAUSED BY THE PRESENCE OF THE CAPITAL COMMISSION.

The Towns of Huron and Pierre Thought to be Even in the Race for Capitalization—Miscellaneous News Items.

The Capital Commission.

ST. PAUL, May 3.—The Dispatch's special from Canton, Dakota, says: The excitement concerning the movements of the capital commission at this point run high all day yesterday and until late in the evening. Several hundred strangers and prominent business men from different parts of the territory were present, gathered in groups and holding numerous low voiced but earnest consultations. LaMoure, of Pembina, Shaw, of St. Vincent, and representatives of Sioux City, St. Paul and Chicago real estate operators arrived by the morning train, while additional delegations came in during the day from Pierre and the Black Hills. The commissioners were all present but DeLong, who is reported ill. Bids representing the towns of Huron, Canton, Pierre, Mitchell, Aberdeen, Frankfort and Ordway were all handed in. The balance of the day up to 3 p. m. was consumed by the various delegations in a general skirmish for advantage ground. The commission reconvened at 8 p. m., their first action being to allow themselves until the 15th inst. (when they will meet again at the same place) to open bids, etc., in which to visit the entire list of towns competing and make a careful examination as to the advantages of each. Then filed in the various delegations and addressed the commission through chosen spokesmen on the merits and documents of their respective towns for a capital site. The people from Pierre openly tendered in addition to a land subsidy a spot cash bonus of $100,000, which they showed to be already in the bank. Fargo, Bismarck, Huron and several other places tendered pressing invitations to the commission to hold their next meeting thereat with the freedom of the city and all facilities guaranteed in each case. The commission adjourned about 6 o'clock and took a train for Pierre, where they will remain until something more patent than another may be mentioned at this juncture it is that the contest for the new capital site will lay between Huron and Pierre, with probabilities substantially in favor of the latter, as this would settle the question as to whether the new capital should be located in the northern or southern part of the territory. The commission adjourned at 10 o'clock, and the admission of South Dakota according to the programme heretofore mentioned.

THE CAPITAL COMMISSION.

IT MEETS AT CANTON AND OPENS BIDS.

And Will Now Visit the Towns Bidding and Determine Which is the Best for the Capital, all Things Considered.

Details of the Work Thus Far.

ST. PAUL, May 2.—[Special.]—The capital commission at Canton has received sealed bids from Huron, Mitchell, Steele, Ordway and Redfield, and Pierre, Aberdeen, Frankfort and Canton are preparing bids. All towns bidding have extended invitations to the commission to visit their places and inspect the land offered. The invitation has been accepted, and a special train was taken for Mitchell this afternoon, the first town to be visited. The time for receiving bids was extended to May 15th, at 12 o'clock noon, no bids to be received after that hour and none to be opened before. The meeting on the 15th will also be held at Canton. It is thought none of the bids are less than $100,000 cash and 160 acres of land, though the bidders are very reticent. It is thought the towns standing the best chances are Huron, Ordway and Pierre, in the order named. Steele is complimented on being the most enterprising of North Dakota towns, being the only one to bid.

Associated Press Report.

CANTON, D. T., May 2.—The Dakota capital commission met in this place yesterday to receive bids for the capital location. It is positively known that Huron, Mitchell, Steele, Ordway, Pierre and Redfield have sent in bids ranging from $100,000 to $200,000. The bid from Steele is said to be $100,000 and 160 acres of land. Gov. Ordway is of the opinion that the town offering the most money will get the capital, as in the case of division the town making the donation would have the public buildings, which could be converted into a state institution of some kind, and the capital be again located, and permanently. The commission, however, are inclined to make geographical location paramount to money consideration, and when the bids are all in will make a personal examination of all the sites offered. Public sentiment locates the buildings in the Jim river valley. It is said that Huron would be the most satisfactory location for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, and Chicago & Northwestern roads, and there is no denying the fact that the commissioners would rather please two railroads than one, but Huron, it is said, will offer no more than the bill calls for, viz: One hundred and sixty acres of land and $100,000, and it remains to be seen whether money considerations will outweigh advantages of location.

There is a feeling of confidence in the matter of an early division, and that when it comes it will be on the Missouri river rather than on the 46th parallel. East of the river is an agricultural region and on the west a grazing and mining and that congress will insist on a river division.

From Another Source.

CANTON, D. T., May 2.—[Special.]—The commissioners met, all members being present. Sealed bids from Huron, Mitchell, Steele, Ordway, Frankfort, and Pierre were presented. Aberdeen solicited a visit from the commission and invitations from all bidding towns to the commissioners to visit their localities were presented. The time for receiving and opening bids was extended to the 15th inst. The commission adjourned to meet at Canton on the 15th inst. The commission went to Mitchell to-night by special train to inspect the grounds offered. They will visit all the bidding towns before the 15th for the same purpose.

Heavy Snow Storms.

TERRY'S LANDING, Mt., May 2.—[Special.] At 8 o'clock yesterday morning a very severe snow storm began gradually extending over the entire section of country from Fort Keogh to Billings. The warmth of the weather will probably prevent blockades, but its melting will leave the roads in an impassable condition.

RAPID CITY, D. T., May 2.—[Special.]—Since yesterday a heavy snow storm began raging over a large section of country. The snow is now fifteen inches deep, and falling rapidly. It is more than probable it will cause as large a blockade as we had last month.

A TYPOGRAPHICAL error in a Denver newspaper last week caused the reporter, who suffered to seriously malitiate suicide. He had written of the Colorado Canyon: "Gaze up and down the rocky jaws and you imagine the world has opened its mouth to eat a planet and grind it with mountain molars." After the intelligent compositor had got in his work there was left behind the figure of speech, inasmuch as the world was made to open its mouth "to eat a planet."

HE Granted Her Wish. As a TRIBUNE reporter was flitting like a spectre along Main street at a late hour last night he met a loving couple walking arm in arm, and snuggled up together like a pair of affectionate kittens. She was looking up in his face in an earnest attitude, while he gazed down upon her coming features with looks of love that surpassed all understanding. As the reporter neared them he heard the lady in pleading tones say:

"Please, darling, for my sake do as I ask you. Will you grant your beloved this one small boon? 'I'm but a little thing, for you to do, and if you love me as you profess to do you will heed my prayers. Do not oh! please do not take off your flannels yet—the weather is cold."

The reporter turned and watched them fade gradually away in the darkness, and is glad to chide the fact that he lovingly regarded the wishes of the beautiful one who clung to his arm. As far as he could distinguish their forms through the thick and gathering gloom of night he watched them with a tender solicitude, and his heart bounded with a keen pleasure when he noted that he did not take them off.

THE LIME-KILN CLUB.

Judge Perfection Smith Undergoes a Severe Discipline.

Sir Isaac Walpole on Opinions—A Great Loss to the Museum.

Detroit Free Press.

"Am Judge Perfection Smith in de hall dis evenin'?" asked the president as he laid aside his gavel and looked around him.

"Yes, sah," answered a voice full of fishbones and shingle nails shaken up together.

"Please ambulate dis way."

The judge ambulated. He came up confident and smiling, expecting to receive a gold medal for inventing a mosquito-bar, which also catches rats.

"Judge Smith," said the president in a solemn voice, "dar am a few little things I desiah to spoke to you about. You war at de pos offia de odder day to rent a box at $2.50 per quarter. All de mail dat you receive in six months wouldn't light a kerosene lamp. Den why dis attempt to frow on style an' heap on agony?"

"I didn't rent one, sah," replied the culprit in a weak voice.

"A few days ago," continued the president "I overheard you trottin' out a presidential candidate for 1884. You had your biggest voice, an' you was flinging your arms about, an' one would have thought you knowed all about it. Judge Smith, you will have no mo' to do wid de makin' of de nex' president of de United States dan one grain of sand will have in makin' up de great Sahary desert."

"No, sah—that's so, sah."

"Let dis be a warnin' to you, sah. From dis time on, you have no candidate, don't want one, an' take no interest in polities beyond what can be expected of every citizen. If any man axes you to tell him who am to be nex' president don't you do it. Top of de line-front locked tight on your bums. An' a day or two ago you denounced yourself as an advocate of a tariff. Judge Smith, do you know what a tariff is?"

"N—not exactly, sah, but I was gwine to read up on it."

"Exactly," an' perhaps you'd better read up on how to keep your mouth shut on what you don't know an' what don't affect you! You are a sure and mixed up case. While your wife needs shoes an' de children want clothes you walk aroun' de market wid yer old white overcoat on to tell de world dat you doubt believe in dis or dat, or dat you am wedded to de theory of de overcoat to de end of de world."

"Ize sorry, sah. I'll drop de bull business right off."

"See dat you do. Theories am all right onless a man am two months behind on his rent. Doctrines am all right when a family haint shuberin' wid cold. Individual opinions count for nuffin' when de individual can't raise cash 'nuff to get a patch on his boot. Go an' sot down, Judge Smith, an' don't lose a minit in startin' de road to reform."

ELECTION.

Sir Isaac Walpole added that he had always made it a rule through life never to advocate a doctrine or advance an opinion when he had his old clothes on, and then he took up his bean box and elected the following candidates: Green, Similarly Thompson and Therefore Taylor.

A LOST SKULL.

Givedam Jones then arose to make a few inquiries in the Watson case. Some eight weeks ago Brother Watson was left in charge of the museum for a brief half hour while the regular official went out to work on a fifty cent piece with a hole in it. During this interval a person representing himself as the president of a new medical college called to exhibit before his class. The Lime-Kiln Club has been at great pains and expense to secure three of the genuine skulls of this great philosopher, and had the regular keeper of the museum been in his place a bribe of $5,000 would have tempted him to let one of the sacred relics out of his sight.

But Brother Watson allowed the stranger to take one of the skulls away without a thought of deceit, and no trace of it has since been found. Brother Watson was fined $7,000, and a reward of $500 was offered for the skull, and now Brother Jones arose to suggest a compromise. There were only four copies of Benjamin Franklin's favorite spelling book in existence, and he had one of them. He would turn it in to take the place of the missing skull, and in case Brother Watson's fine was canceled he would do his best to secure for the museum the first correct copy of America. After some argument the compromise was effected, and such a burden was lifted from the derelict brother's shoulders that he grieved for joy.

RULES SUSPENDED.

The following communication was then announced: WASHINGTON, March 20, 1883. MY DEAR BROTHER GARDNER: Since Love R. R. Davis was elected a member of the Lime Kiln Club of Detroit, he has been in general desire on the part of the respectable citizenry of the great city of Washington to enter its ranks. Among the most ambitious is Cornelius Davis, who holds the important trust of custodian of cancelled postage stamps of the patent office.

The said Davis is a firm believer in dreams and otherwise qualified for membership.

Yours fraternally, LOUIS FRANKLIN.

On motion of Waydown Bebes the rules were suspended and the member was voted in before he could get away.

IT IS NOT.

Sim Gooseberry, the vigilant and enterprising head member at Possum Bottoms, W. Va., wrote the club "in haste" to inquire if there was anything in the constitution, by-laws to prohibit the colored man from eating possum meat during Lent.

"Dar am not," replied the president. "Any member of dis club am privileged to eat any sort of food at de table of de club at any time, be it Monday, Friday or any other day. De great anxiety am now to get de meat."

SOMETIMES.

The secretary of the "F. H. M." (Fow Hard Men) club, of Canton, O., officially inquired, under seal of his lodge, if the Lime Kiln Club was a benevolent organization, and what sum was paid at the death of a member.

"Sometimes dis am a benevolent organization, an' sometimes she ain't," answered the president. "Sometimes we chip in an' pull a poor man thow a tight ship, an' sometimes we let him pull himself. We has waded money for tombstones, but we can't be depended on. We don't pay any sartin sum when a member dies, but allus reckon on squarin' up his back rent an' buyin' de widder a new bonnet an' a ton of coal."

A New Religious Movement.

A religious movement bearing some resemblance to that of the Salvation army has begun at Hamburg. Three orthodox clergymen invite people, especially workmen, to meetings by placards with the inscription: "Followers of Christ, assemble and take up His cross." The meetings are well attended by men and women of the lower classes. Free discussion is allowed.

Wonderful Experiments.

The most astonishing claim yet made in behalf of electricity is that it has been proven possible to convey the vibrations of light, so that it is practicable not only to speak with a distant friend, but to see him. According to the Ohio Times, Dr. Guidish, of Victoria, has invented an apparatus, called by him the electroscope, which accomplishes this.

The paper in question says that a public test of this instrument was made at Melbourne in the presence of some forty scientific and public men. Sitting in a dark room, they saw projected on a large sheet of white burnished metal the race-course at Flemington with its myriad hosts of active beings. Each minute detail stood out with perfect fidelity to the original, and as they looked at the wonderful picture through scientific glasses it was difficult to imagine that they were not actually on the course itself, and moving among those whose actions they could so completely scan.

A CAR-LOAD OF BEES.

Shipping His Apiaries to Florida for the Winter.

Atlanta Constitution, Jan. 9.

On Saturday a car containing a curious freight was switched on the East Tennessee and Virginia railroad and moved south. It was filled with beehives. One hundred and forty of the latest style of beehives were piled systematically on top of each other, and to the foreground was the philosopher with his bed and board.

"Where are you going to take your bees?" "To Florida for the winter. My name is Thomas. McFarland Jackson and I live in northern Missouri. I have large apiaries that are forced to lie idle in the winter. I'm going to take this carload of hives to Florida, where they can make honey every day in the year. As soon as the clover is out again in northern Missouri I will take them back there."

"Will it pay you to move them?" "I think so. It costs me less than a dollar a hive for transportation, and each hive will have from $5 to $7 worth of honey in it when I bring them back. That is what Italian bees I sent to Florida last year did last winter. Only Italian bees will thrive in Florida, as the moths eat up the common bees."

"Will you live in the open air there?" "I'm going to camp around with my bees. I believe I will bring back about $1,000 worth of honey, which would otherwise lie idle all the winter and be empty in the spring."

Nicaragua and the Proposed Canal.

Luis E. Degener, consul of Austria-Hungary at Leon, in the Central American republic of Nicaragua, being in New Orleans a few days ago, gave a reporter some points, about Nicaragua. He was particularly enthusiastic on the subject of the Nicaragua Canal. "Communication with Europe," said he, "for both exports and imports is carried on via Panama. Our Atlantic port is Greytown, at the mouth of the San Juan river, which will be the starting point of the canal on the Atlantic side. The highest point on the line of the proposed canal is Lake Nicaragua, about eighty-five miles from Greytown, and covering an area of about three thousand square miles. Its only outlet is the San Juan river. On the Pacific side of Lake Nicaragua, and emptying into it, a small stream, the Rio de Las Lajas, will be used. It will be widened and deepened, and beyond that there will be about twenty-five miles of cutting, the deepest not exceeding twenty-five feet."

The terminus of the canal on the Pacific will be Brito, an open roadstead, which will require breakwaters and other extensive improvements. The route of the canal, there will be four locks six hundred feet in length on each side. It has been estimated that the work can be easily done for $600,000,000, which compares very favorably with the $200,000,000 required for the Panama canal, under which figure it can hardly be completed, notwithstanding the statements of interested parties. I have gone over the route several times for personal observation, and find that it traverses the richest and healthiest section of the country, abounding in dense forests, such as cedar, mahogany, rosewood, ebony, and last, but not least, millstone galls. On the Pacific side, besides through veins of precious minerals, gold and silver principally, and laying open the country for emigration and cultivation. The country is suitable for all kinds of people. We have climates and all growths, from wheat to sugarcane, sugar, coffee, and the like, the hottest region, the terra templada, equivalent to the climate of Louisiana and Texas, and the terra fria, equivalent to the temperature of our northern states, without their snow and ice.

His Rich Joke.

Detroit Free Press.

The other day a baggage wagon brought a trunk to the Union depot which was labeled: "Dynamite within—smash if you dare!"

The trunk was closely followed by a young man who had about seven minutes to get his check and catch the train. When he presented his ticket and asked for a check the baggage-master replied:

"This trunk can't go as baggage."

"Why?"

"The contents are dangerous. You'll have to remove it from here at once or I'll make you trouble."

"But there is no dynamite within."

"Here is the warning."

"Yes, but that was for a joke on the baggage-smashers."

"Young man a railroad never jokes. Get that trunk out of here!"

"Come, old fellow, it was only a fun," entered the smart fellow. "I have only four minutes to catch the train."

"If you do not remove the dangerous trunk I shall have to call an officer!" was the firm reply.

"Let me inspect it."

This was grudgingly acceded to, and nothing more dangerous than four shirts which sadly needed washing were discovered. By this time the train had departed, leaving the joker with eight hours on his hands, and as the trunk was unlocked he was handed a scraper and the advice:

"Young man, it might be safer for you to label yourself with something like: 'Fornicate, bleed—no delay.' You are evidently too ripe for this section. Now scrape that sign off, or the trunk can't go!"

Not a Member.

"What country do you represent, sir?" asked one individual of another in front of a saloon in St. Paul, Minn., one day last week. "I'm not a member of the legislature," was the reply; "I'm only a private citizen on a drunk."

THE DUDE.

[Mary Prentiss.]

A lah-dah-dah young man,
A lah-lah-lah young man,
An almost new place of smart talk,
A tra-la-la young man.

He thought he'd go and see
The world so wide and free,
If anything was good enough for him,
He climbed the Himalay,
He tramped through Africa,
But everything was far too rough for him.

A tall, aesthetie young man,
An utterly sweet young man;
A perfect well-head,
A finished quite complete young man.

He quizzed the continent;
In eighty days he went
Around the world to show what he could do;
He said with all his force:
"The world was all too coarse
And nothing did what it was meant to do."

A Roman nose young man,
A tooth-pick toes young man,
Who sucked his cane
To soothe his brain—
A tight fit clothes young man!

The men all feel for him,
The girls all kneel to him,
The deaf mutes eagerly his way!
But he will take his chance,
And he will dance his dances,
For every god is bound to have his day.

An eye-glass quiz young man,
A "perhaps it is" young man,
A perfumed deer
From ear to ear—
Do you know who it is, young man?

CENTRAL PARK OBELISK.

A Student of Mortars Says the Structure is Made of Concrete.

Mr. U. Cummings, in a letter to The Scientific American concerning the composition of the Egyptian obelisk in Central Park, says: "My reasons for believing the obelisk to be a mass of concrete areas follows: I have spent a life time in the manufacture of limes and cements, and in the study of mortars, concretes, etc., and after thirty years spent in this line, it seems as though I ought to know concrete when I see it."

I went around on the back side of the obelisk, climbed over the wire fence, mounted the masonry work, took out a strong magnifying glass and a sharp pointed steel, and went at it. I could see what looked at a distance to be a gray, reddish, uniform tint, was, on close inspection, granite broken into pieces from the size of a walnut down to corn or wheat size, and these broken stones were intimately mixed with some bituminous matter, black and scamy, something of the nature of asphaltum. The black substance and broken stones were thoroughly mixed with hydraulic lime; by the latter I do not mean hydraulic cement, but lime which contained sufficient clay to render it hydraulic, but not enough to prevent it from sinking if kept under weight eight or ten days. With my steel point I could play out this hydraulic lime, and with my knife I cut and shaved the black substance, which lay in all conceivable ways, the grain in some bits presenting their flat sides, sometimes their ends, sometimes their corners, and sometimes their edges, showing it to have been mixed up with the lime and broken stone haphazard. I think, if I had had time enough and no policeman to nose around and bother one, I could have taken out a bit of granite with my steel.

The hieroglyphics show, as plain as anything can show, that they were formed by fastening the proper form on the inside of the box into which the concrete was resumed, and then the concrete had hardened sufficiently, the boxes were about sawed off, leaving their impression on the face of the concrete, exactly as is done every day by the manufacturers of artificial stone. Such work cannot be mistaken for real granite, and is chisel by any one familiar with that class of work. Every letter is made to 'draw,' and in no place could I find a spot among all the hieroglyphics where a pattern would not 'draw.'

Such a structure, made in concrete as I have described, could be safely carried up at the rate of from 12 to 15 inches per day, and so positive am I that it is concrete, that I would not hesitate to enter into a contract to erect exact duplicates of it in any city for $15,000 each. I think I can find granite in Connecticut of the same color, the bituminous matter, and the hydraulic lime in Buffalo and with these make just as good obelisks as were ever turned out in Egypt. As to the durability of the obelisk in Central Park, of which much has been written, I think I will stand for ages when it is. Some portions may get loose that were not perfectly cemented, but as a whole the material is of that class that will outlast anything else we have.

The Steamship of the Future.

The coming steamship, according to Mr. Bliven's belief, will measure 468 feet in length by 72 feet beam and 53 feet depth of hold, and have a gross tonnage of 4,000. She will carry 600 first-class passengers, 2,000 in the steerage and 500 tons of mail and express matter, will make twenty-four round trips from America to England yearly, and a single trip in five days. The cost of operating, it is claimed, will be one-half of that for the present model steamships of the same capacity, and she will need no sailors. For safety she will have eight cross bulkheads and
